"PEEPERS" DUCKED AT CONEY ISLAND

Police Save Two Waiters Who Annoyed Women From Vengeance of 500 Bathers.

NEW YORK, July 4.-Detected under the boardwalk at Concy Island, two "Peeping Toms" caused great excitement today. Pursued by detectives, life guards and at least 500 bathers, they dodged over hundreds of yards of beach, ran out onto a jetty and swam fifty feet before they were captured. Sticks and clam shells were thrown at them and the detectives had to call uniformed policemen to their assistance before they could get them to the station

Detectives Vitale and Kellerman had received information from women that they had been annoyed by men hiding beneath the boardwalk. The detectives discovered two men lurking beneath the boardwalk at the foot of Jones' walk, leading to the beach.

As the detectives were about to arrest them they noticed four life guards in bathing suits crawling along the sand. The life guards also had received complaints from women and were on the watch. While the policemen were trying to attract the attention of the life guards, the "peepers" noticed them and made a break for the beach.

The detectives and lifeguards ran af-The detectives and lifeguards ran after them and a young woman bather called, "There are the 'peepers'." A knot of men bathers headed off the fugitives, who doubled and ran to the shore end of a nearby jetty. At least 500 bathers, men and women, practically all left on that part of the beach, joined with the detectives and lifeguards in the chase.

The fugitives scrambled to the end of the jetty and, although fully dressed, jumped in the ocean. In also went the detectives, the life guards and fifty or of fifty feet.

Vitale and Kellerman towed their prisoners back to the jetty and then took them back to the beach. "Beat em up!" shricked one woman. A rush on the detectives followed and then came a shower of whatever missiles could be a slower of whatever missiles could be picked up on the beach.

The prisoners were finally landed in the station house. They gave their names as Andrew Lipocati, forty-five years old, of Manhattan, and Louis Ferra, thirty-two years old, of Coney Island. They were said to be employed as waiters in a Coney Island. land restaurant, the proprietor of which furnished ball, because he said he needed their services.

Alleged Speakeasy Is

Three Washington policemen, headed by Sergeant J. Willard Green, of the Third precinct, rounded up an alleged "speakeasy," at 937 Hughes court this morning. With Policemen Kleindenst and Scanlon, the sergeant concealed himself in the sergeant conceased nimser in the home of Annie Locker in Green court, early this morning, when Mrs.
Locker went out. They hid in a closet and waited. She returned after more than an hour, when James Bell came in after her, and, according to the officers, sold her whisky. They trailed around to Bell's house in Hughes court, and there found four-teen men and women drinking, they assert. Bell, whose alias is given as "Bunny Hat," was arrested.
